MnTC Goals: Goal LS - Upper Division Liberal Studies, Goal 06 - Humanities/Fine Arts, Goal 07 - Human Diversity

This course takes a systematic and historic look at immigration as an American national mythos and examines how immigration intersects with race and racial difference, and has affected the development of Black, Asian, Latino and Indigenous cultures and communities within the United States. Topics include immigration histories and experiences, critical conceptions of race, ethnicity, and migration, assimilation and acculturation processes, and social, cultural, and policy responses to migration. Significant focus is given to issues of race and racism

C. Outline of Major Content Areas:

See Course Description for major content areas.

D. Learning Outcomes (General)

1. Compare and contrast immigration experiences across time, place, generation, racialization, changing racial formations, and the various factors motivating mobility.
2. Explain how human migration interlinks with a number of other aspects of globalization such as but not limited to relationships among nations, racism and racial discrimination, economic policies, transnational business, trade, politics and policies, war, non-governmental organizations, popular culture, technologies, and other events that impact more than one country.
3. Recognize racial discourses (including white supremacy) that inform immigration conversations and conceptions of immigrants in popular culture in the United States.
4. Analyze the ways immigration policy and immigration enforcement in the U.S. is socially constructed, politicized, and racialized.
5. Distinguish the roles that racism and white supremacy have played in the history and development of our understandings of immigration, the immigrant, and our ideal of the United States as a "nation of immigrants.”
